The Problem of Painting Christ:

strange responses to the greatest artistic challenge

by Dr Chloë Reddaway

The challenge of painting Christ is a uniquely complex one. How does one paint a figure who is fully human and fully divine in a meaningful way? In this lecture, Chloë Reddaway explores some of the extra-ordinary artistic responses with which Italian painters in the Renaissance met this challenge, and takes a fresh look at well-known paintings of Christ, discovering how surprising and deeply 'strange' they can be.

Dr Chloë Reddaway is a researcher in the Centre for Arts and the Sacred at King's College London and McDonald Agape Theology and the Arts Research Associate at Duke University, NC. She is a former Howard and Roberta Ahmanson Fellow and Curator of Art and Religion at the National Gallery, London.

Church in focus

GIFTS AND ASSIGNMENTS THAT COVID SEASON HAS LEFT US.

I would like to share my thoughts about the gifts that Covid has left us & my private concerns about our future direction as God's church.

At the beginning of the pandemic, I felt a real desperation, considering the possibility of losing people from church sometime soon.

Thankfully, God has given us great chances to deliver the Gospel through online Zoom & various ways to send God's love; using phone calls, email, SNS, & window visiting. As a result, we have used those chances well during the pandemic and God gave us three gifts through the Covid pandemic:

1. We could focus on and listen to God's word rather than surrounding factors.
2. Church members have become a little closer and more familiar through seeing others' names with the faces on the screen and having a chance to chat online. Before Covid I think there was some tendency to keep relatively narrow relationships among church members even in the same building.
3. Keeping in touch among people became more natural because church workers or main groups in the church had no choice but to contact people to deliver God's love.
4. We have now entered the 'With Corona' era as a hybrid church with these gifts.

Interestingly, people now care for each other over the walls, online and offline.

I think we have our assignment to discern the future of church. As a hybrid church, we need to find some good ideas to embrace all the members who attend church online.

Second, we need to discern God's calling, & be ready to change and renew our way of spreading the gospel as it is a very changeable season. However, it is also vital to keep the same pace with Jesus rather than following our thoughts & passion.

I hope and pray that we can find the best way to spread God's word for this era.
